Creating Satisfying Relationships

Her father's suicide seemed to be a morbid ending to Jacqui Olliver's teenage years of isolation, loneliness and not feeling wanted. Like many other experts, her life started out as a troubled teenager, working through the mental contamination associated with sexual abuse, low self-esteem, social anxiety, and depression.

Jacqui stumbled into a relationship with a man who became her best friend even though he had many issues such as gambling, alcohol, and sexual dysfunction. She persisted, as a loyal companion until the morning of their 15th anniversary when she awoke to find him passed away on the sofa. She remembers shaking his shoulders and while his head was rolling loosely, telling him that this was not part of the plan!

Suddenly, Jacqui felt like an outsider in a world where she just didn't belong. It seemed like the world was full of couples, friends and families who had each other, while it felt like she had no one.

After dealing with the death of her partner - the loss, grief, loneliness, and despair through counselling and working in the health and wellness industry, Jacqui realized the answers she was looking for were buried deep within her. She spent 8 years researching and developing effective methods to not only shine in her own life but help restore emotional balance and solve male and female sex problems.

Psychosexual Relationship Specialist at End the Problem, Jacqui Olliver's life experience has enabled her to relate to and understand the pressure and frustrations experienced by people in or out of relationships who are unable to relax in the most intimate moments of connection with another. She knows how mentally devastating it is to feel incomplete as a person and to feel like a failure as a human being.

Jacqui's unique views on sexual function, human psychology and emotions are heralded as having the potential to change the universal perspective on health and relationships.

Topic: Lack of Libido in Men & Women

I am often asked what causes a lack of libido in men and women and this is a really interesting question. While children, stress and health issues can temporarily affect a person's sex drive and overall desire for sex, and diet and exercise can play a contributing role in causing a low libido, they are usually not the main cause of an ongoing lack of libido... So what is the real problem?

In my many years of experience in solving sex problems for men and women, the leading cause of lack of libido in either or both partners are thoughts about unwanted problems. These can be related or unrelated to sex and the resulting mental contamination can lead to relationship breakdown.

People are craving real insights and knowledge to restore satisfaction in this important area of their lives. Let's take a look at how misdirected thoughts and a lack of knowledge around intimacy can negatively affect a woman's libido and the desire for both partners to connect:

- ❖ Understanding your brain – how you switch off your libido and keep it switched off
- ❖ What causes a man to lose his hard erection and or have ejaculation problems?
- ❖ Why sex is like walking a tight-rope for men – and the biggest mission that men face sexually
- ❖ Why is it so challenging for most women to reach an orgasm?
- ❖ The real problem with porn and romance novels
- ❖ Why you need to deal with the emotions that make you feel disconnected
- ❖ How to eliminate the inner vaginal dryness that makes sex excruciating for 50% of women
- ❖ The unresolved body odor every woman needs to ACT upon

"Jacqui solved our problem immediately! Within 10 minutes of applying her technique I could already feel my libido switching back on! And now I can orgasm more easily too! After years of not feeling turned on or welcoming my husband's advances we both feel increased desire for each other." Nikki

"I have been married for over 40 years. I enjoyed the intimacy and closeness of sex but had never been able to achieve an orgasm. Over the years, we went to many doctors and specialists and tried many treatments. Nothing worked until we found Jacqui. Now I "hit gold" nearly every time we have intercourse! Sex has now become more enjoyable for both of us." Jean – Experienced her first orgasm at 76 years old.

"I am amazed that after 30 odd years of not feeling sexually attracted to my husband, it was like a switch turned on for me and I now desire sex as much as he does! (I'm 57 and he's 60). This saved our marriage! I want to shout it out to the world - if you're having problems with your sex life, go and see Jacqui!" Linda

"I'm cured Jacqui! Any position for as long as I want! So happy, I honestly thought I was broken. Thank you doesn't cover it... You have no idea what this means to me." Adam
